EdLeads Now Accepting Applications for Summer 2014 MEd Program

The Department of Educational Foundations in the College of Education at UH Mānoa offers EdLeads, Educational Leadership in the Asia-Pacific Region, a master of education (MEd) program. Designed to allow teachers, administrators, and other educators to pursue study and research interests without career interruption, the program emphasizes the exploration of educational issues from cultural, philosophical, historical, and international perspectives.

As part of EdLeads, students attend face-to-face sessions over two summers (five weeks each) with independent study and advising during the fall and spring semesters. The program embraces students’ research interests as well as the idea of professional leadership for teachers and other educators. With a vibrant community of students from all over Hawai‘i, the mainland U.S., Asia, and the Pacific Islands, the program invites intellectual stimulation and social interaction.

A former student said, “I loved the opportunity to discuss relevant educational issues with other professionals.” Another student said, “The cohort experience helped to build a strong culture of mutual respect and enabled us to open up and share on a deep level.”

The on-campus schedule for Cohort VIII will be June 14–July 18, 2014 for the first summer (2nd summer in June/July 2015, TBA). On October 18, 2014 and March 7, 2014, meetings with cohort members and faculty will occur in person or via Skype.

The application deadline is November 29, 2013. For more EdLeads information and application details, please visit the website: https://coe.hawaii.edu/academics/educational-foundations/med-edleads.
