College of Education degree-seeking students are required to complete 40 hours of current (within five years) paid or voluntary group leadership field experience with the appropriate age group according to their major (ie. Secondary Education B.Ed. undergraduate students are required to work with 7th grade to 12th grade aged students while Elementary Education B.Ed. undergraduate students are required to work with kindergarten to 6th grade aged students). By being integrated into the Education major requirements, this valuable field experience allows students to take an active role in working in group leadership positions similar to their future role in the classroom as well as provides a window into whether or not students should pursue the teaching profession. This non-comprehensive, working field experience list provides education majors one source of field experience opportunities brought to the attention of the University of Hawai‘i’s College of Education Office of Student Academic Services. While the list is intended to not be the sole source of field experiences, it is meant to give students a starting point at which to find out which field work best suits them to complete the 40 hours minimum field experience requirement for the Education major.

Revised Field Experience Opportunities

Aloha! The following list contains suggestions for anyone interested in working or volunteering with children and youth. Please note that the College of Education does not endorse any particular opportunity nor does it incur liability for such experiences. Since we cannot possibly capture the numerous enriching experiences that are available in the community, please feel free to seek additional opportunities that may better suit your interests. Mahalo nui loa!

AVID (Advancement Via Individual Determination) Program Tutor:
The AVID tutor is responsible for facilitating tutoring sessions with groups of 4-6 students in the AVID classroom. Students are divided into core academic groups and take turns presenting their question to the group in order to obtain help solving the problem. The role of the AVID tutor is to facilitate that discussion and ask questions to help the presenter find the answer with the aid of notes taken in class, textbook or through information/data found on the internet. AVID tutors also assist the classroom teacher with grading tutorial sheets and reflections at the end of the class.

Requirements: Needs consistency, 1 hour training.
